Adapting to the Everchanging Panorama of Healthcare: Lessons Learned & Moving Forward

Monday, September 26 and Tuesday, September 27, 2022
Southbridge Convention Center, Southbridge, MA

Overall Conference Purpose Statement

Since the start of the Covid-19 pandemic the “panorama” or perspective of healthcare across the world no longer has an extensive, unbroken or unobstructed view. The events of the past 2 years have forever changed healthcare, not only for case managers but the individuals we serve. Providers have had to re-invent/revise how they provide care; telehealth has become the new norm and the impact of this change has significant ramifications. Staffing shortages have challenged us all while isolation, stress and domestic violence have increased. Ethical decision making for those with cultural differences or diminished capacity remain problematic.

Learning Objectives

- Discuss the impact Covid-19 pandemic has had on how services are provided such as Long-Term Care, Hospice/Palliative Care, Paramedicine, as well as behavioral health interventions for our military & their families.
- List the challenges associated with ethical decision making for patients with cultural difference or those lacking capacity.
- Identify how Domestic Violence risk factors have increased/evolved since the start of the Covid-19 pandemic.
- Identify how stress can diminish productivity and learn techniques that can be applied to improve one’s overall health and resilience.
- Explore the medical and mental health perspectives of care and services for patients with Autism Spectrum diagnoses, with particular attention to how virtual care has impacted and enhanced the care they receive.
